A Classic in the History of American Education

SCHOOLS OF TOMORROW

by John and Evelyn Dewey
Introduction by William W. Brickman

This book illustrates (in Dewey's words) "what actually happens when schools start out to put into practice, each in its own way, some of the theories that have been pointed out as the soundest and best since Plato." Typical chapters are: "Education as Natural Development," "The Reorganization of the Curriculum," "Freedom and Individuality," "Education Through Industry," and "Democracy and Education."

EDUCATION AND THE NEW AMERICA

by SOLON T. KIMBALL, Teachers College, Columbia University and JAMES E. McCLELLAN, Temple University

The first major review of the role of education in our society to appear in almost thirty years. In this incisive study, the authors consider the nature of urgent new demands on education and the changing commitment required in a highly corporate society.

1962; 448 pages; $4.75 text (Random House)

by FREDERICK RUDOLPH, Williams College

THE AMERICAN College and University
A History

A fine, clear, and exciting book—told with a perspective which a long look at the sources makes possible—Timothy L. Smith, University of Minnesota
